Daylong with Anandabodhi Bhikkhuni

(From Aloka Vihara, Placerville)

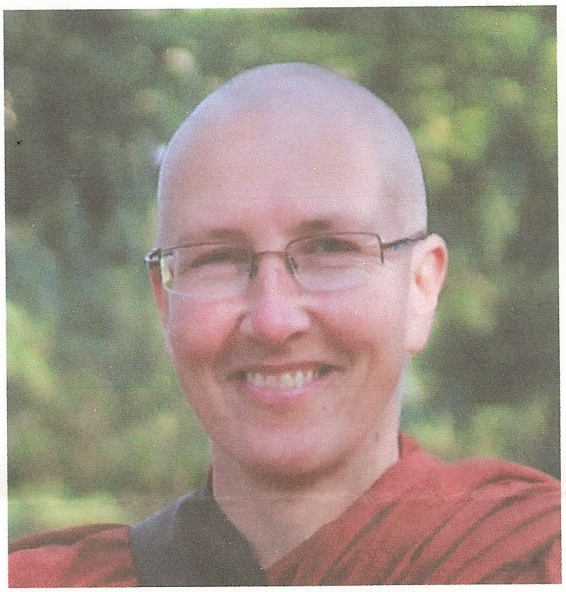
"Its Closer Than You Think"

Sunday, September 14, 2014

9:30 am- 4:30 pm

Zion Street Center

Nevada City, CA



Anandabodhi Bhikkhuni will lead a day of vipassana Buddhist meditation on Sunday September 14. Her topic will be It's Closer Than You Think.

Ayya Anandabodhi first encountered the Buddha's teaching in her early teens, which ignited a deep interest in the Buddha's Path of Awakening. She has practiced meditation since 1989, and lived in Amaravati and Chithurst monasteries in the UK from 1992 for 18 years. In 2009 she moved to the U.S. on invitation of the Saranaloka Foundation, to help establish Aloka Vihara, a training monastery for women, where she now resides.

She took leave of the Ajahn Chah lineage in 2011, in order to take full bhikkhuni ordination. The teachings and example of Ajahn Chah continue to be an influence and inspiration in her practice and teaching.

This daylong will held at the Zion Street Center of Mountain Stream Meditation Center in Nevada City. Please bring a lunch and something to drink and food to share with Ayya Anandabodhi. Wear loose and comfortable clothing. You are welcome to bring meditation pillows/cushions/shawls or anything you need for comfortable sitting. Chairs, zafus, zabutons and benches will be provided.

The suggested registration for the day is a sliding scale $25 to $40. Checks may be made out to Mt. Stream Meditation Center. No one is ever turned away for lack of funds; please ask about scholarships if needed. To ensure a space, pre-registration is recommended and encouraged for this exceptional day of teaching.

In keeping with the Buddhist practice of dana (generosity), participants are welcomed to freely offer dana in support of Ayya Anandabodhi and the nuns' new forest community in Placerville at Aloka Vihara (www.saranaloka.org).
